Wheat After falling to a two-week low, wheat futures climbed steadily higher this week regaining most of the losses. A weaker U.S. dollar and dry conditions across the U.S. Plains lent support. CBOT wheat futures gained by USD 4/MT on this week to closed at USD 166/MT and KCBT wheat futures also gained by USD 4/MT and closed at USD 171/MT (U.S. wheat Associates, March 17th, 2017) (Table-2 & 3).

RICE

- Global rice export for 2016/17 is forecasted in March at 41.23 million MT, up 2.0% from a year earlier (USDA, March, 2017).
- Global Exports are lowered for India and Vietnam, but raised for China. Global stocks are revised lower.
- Export forecasts for 2017 were raised for India, Thailand, and Burma. Thailand's trading prices dropped about 1 percent over the past month while Vietnam's increased slightly.

- India is the main source of basmati trade, although some is supplied by Pakistan. Thailand is the major jasmine exporter, with smaller amounts sold by Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. Thai government policy over the past couple of years has encouraged jasmine production, and the abundant supplies have resulted in declining prices.

WHEAT

- Wheat export for 2016/17 is forecasted in March at 180.12 million MT, which is about 5% higher than the previous years' forecast (USDA, March, 2017).
- Global wheat stocks are forecast to be the largest in 6 years. These are available to the world market and therefore have a direct impact on prices. U.S. stocks, representing the biggest piece of that total, are forecast to rise by 16 percent from last year. Projected stocks in Russia are nearly double and Australian stocks are up 30 percent following record crops in both countries. All of these more than offset the EU decline amid a much smaller crop. Despite record-high global consumption, production is still larger (USDA, March, 2017).

Global trade is boosted to a new record with higher imports for Bangladesh, India, Mexico, and the Philippines more than offsetting a cut for the EU. Higher exports for Argentina and Australia are partially offset by lower trade for Canada.
